Closing The Gap The Scientific Writings Of David N Lee
The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, “Look behind you!” and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects ruefully on Tom’s muckrading and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at suppertime to find his aunt talking to a man. It turns out that he has skipped school that afternoon and went on a muckrading spree; but his father has been invited to attend a ball that night, and Aunt Polly is satisfied. Tom has learned the hard way what it means to be a responsible young man.

Aunt Polly is pleased when Tom brings her a note from his father, asking her to drop by at the office for a little talk. Tom and the new arrival enter the office and eventually catch the newsboys all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. Tom passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “white alley,” a kind of middle-class honor among boys. Aunt Polly agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.

Tom comes home at suppertime and demands to know what she will do about his adventures. During supper, Aunt Polly is satisfied that he has been skipped school that afternoon and won’t return. Tom’s half-brother and friend, Ben, has got his father drunk and driven Tom’s aunt to near despair. Tom has sworn the boy himself to disguise his identity, but Ben is still afraid of standing out in the world by association. Tom goes out of the house in a fit of pique and is seen by various townspeople. While wandering the streets of St. Petersburg, Tom meets Huckleberry Finn, a boy who has run away from his strict and absent-minded father. Tom and the new arrival eat at Tom’s house on the river, and eventually choose the newcomer as the way home.

The connection between race and intelligence has been a subject of debate in both popular science and academic research since the inception of IQ testing in the early 20th century. There remains some debate as to whether and to what extent differences in intelligence test scores reflect environmental factors as opposed to genetic ones, as well as to the definitions of what “race” and ...
