The novel opens with Aunt Polly scouring the house in search of her nephew, Tom Sawyer. She finds him in the closet, discovers that his hands are covered with jam, and prepares to give him a whipping. Tom cries out theatrically, "Look behind you!" and when Aunt Polly turns, Tom escapes over the fence. After Tom is gone, Aunt Polly reflects sadly on Tom's naughtiness and how she lets him get away with too much.

Tom comes home at supper and his mother asks, "What have you learned about your adventures?" During supper, Aunt Polly tells Tom that he will be skipped school that afternoon and won't be able to do his homework. His mother is pleased and shows him that his table is still set for breakfast, but Tom's half-brother, Joe, has already eaten. Tom promises to do his homework and eventually cleans the newsmen all the way home.

When he arrives home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirty clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whitewash the fence. As he passes by, Aunt Polly tells him to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a "white alley," a kind of made-up. "You almost agree," Aunt Polly says, but Tom promises to do his homework and eventually leaves Tom alone with his tasks.

Tom comes home at supper time. Aunt Polly tells him he must be whipped for skipping school that afternoon and erecting an “amusing” obstruction in the street. Tom is equally amused at finding out that his sister is still away from home, but part of Tom’s half-brother, Sid, is part of the prank, and Tom plans to make himself a laughing stock. Aunt Polly is satisfied.

Tom goes out of the house in a daze and wanders down the streets of St. Petersburg. The sun has set, and the town is quiet and desolate. Tom and the new arrival of presents from abroad and eventually choose the newcomers all the way home.

When he returns home in the evening, Tom finds Aunt Polly waiting for him. She notices his dirtied clothes and resolves to make him work the next day, a Saturday, as punishment.

On Saturday morning, Aunt Polly sends Tom out to whiten the fence. Son passes by, and Tom tries to get him to do some of the whitewashing in return for a “high alloy,” a kind of missile. Son almost agrees, but Aunt Polly appears and chases him off, leaving Tom alone with his tasks.
Space law is the body of law governing space-related activities, encompassing both international and domestic agreements, rules, and principles. Parameters of space law include space exploration, liability for damage, weapons use, rescue efforts, environmental preservation, information sharing, new technologies, and ethics.
